Accounting for Lawyers

Pending CLE Approval

Proving your client's case, and maximizing its value, often turns on finding hidden income or assets. Forensic accounting techniques can help locate such income or assets. In this seminar, attendees will learn how to read business and personal tax returns for litigation purposes and the limitations of tax returns, how to read financial statements, and the common manipulative techniques used to hide income and assets.

Presenters:

Joseph A. Martin, Archer & Greiner
Michael Weinberg, Archer & Greiner
Michael Saccomanno, Friedman LLP

Location:

Archer & Greiner, Haddonfield Office,
Haddonfield, N.J.

*What Do You Do When Your Client
Lies Under Oath? Satisfying Your
Ethical Obligations Under RPC 3.3*

Pending CLE Approval

Unfortunately there are times when a client tries to do too much with his or her case and crosses the line with untruthful testimony. When this happens, there are consequences, both for the client and the lawyer. In this seminar, attendees will learn the process lawyers need to follow when they suspect their clients have lied under oath, including satisfying their obligations under RPC 3.3.

Presenters:

Joseph Martin, Archer & Greiner
