

The Evolving Role of Government in Environmental Litigation

Speaking Engagements & Seminars

05.17.2024

Presented by: Vinita Banthia, Charles J. Dennen, Daniel R. Farino

Attorneys Vinita Banthia, Charles Dennen and Daniel Farino will be presenting on “The Evolving Role of Government in Environmental Litigation,” at the New Jersey State Bar Association’s Annual Meeting & Convention. In both state court and federal courts, New Jersey practitioners are seeing an uptick of government-led and government-involved litigation involving emerging and expanding theories of liability and damages. Many of these actions involve so-called emerging contaminants, or contaminants for which new standards are being set. Our litigation attorneys will discuss and examine the changing landscape in environmental law, and preview what New Jersey attorneys may expect to see as the government’s role in environmental litigation continues to evolve.
