Archer is thrilled to kick off its 2024 Summer Associate Program and extends a warm welcome to this year's six talented and promising law students. Archer's program draws the highest caliber students from law schools across the region. Hailing from four universities, this year's class of summer associates boasts a diverse group with an impressive array of backgrounds.

Over the course of eight weeks, this highly accomplished group will have an opportunity to gain meaningful experience working on challenging legal assignments. Based in Archer's Voorhees and Hackensack offices, the summer associates will receive substantive work on active cases spanning the firm's varied practice areas, collaborate on internal projects, and absorb valuable insights from attorneys in all offices. Beyond practical exposure, the program prioritizes skill development, preparing associates for the responsibilities of practicing law.

Sarah Gribbin, Chair of the firm's Hiring Committee, shared her excitement for Archer's incoming summer associate class and this year's program, "We are looking forward to welcoming and providing real-world experience to this group of aspiring attorneys. Our Summer Program will allow them to gain perspective on a law firm career and experience life as a young associate at Archer."

The summer associates will be mentored throughout the summer by attorneys of all levels as part of Archer's robust formal and organic mentoring, training and professional development programs. In addition, class members will be given opportunities to attend client conferences, court hearings, mediation sessions, depositions, and more. Students will also enjoy relationship-building opportunities and social activities with colleagues in a more relaxed setting.
