

Kathleen Hirce Joins Archer as Of Counsel in Environmental Law Practice

Press Releases

04.22.2026

Archer is pleased to announce that Kathleen A. Hirce has joined the firm as Of Counsel in its Environmental Law Practice Group, based in the firm's Hackensack office. Her addition further expands Archer's environmental team in northern New Jersey and reinforces the firm's growing presence and capabilities across the region.

Katie advises clients on a full range of environmental matters, including regulatory compliance, site investigation and remediation, cost recovery and allocation, environmental risk assessment, and the redevelopment of environmentally impacted properties. She represents clients across a range of industries, with particular experience in the petrochemical and gasoline sectors, and brings valuable in-house experience from her secondment with a Fortune 50 petroleum company, where she handled complex environmental claims and investigations.

"We are excited to welcome Katie to Archer," said Marc Rollo, President of Archer and Chair of the firm's Environmental Law Group. "Her addition reflects the continued growth of our Environmental Practice and further strengthens our bench in northern New Jersey. Katie brings a strong combination of technical knowledge and practical, business-focused judgment, and her experience will enhance our ability to serve clients across an increasingly broad and sophisticated range of environmental matters."

Katie's practice also includes advising on the environmental aspects of corporate and real estate transactions, as well as supporting environmental litigation strategy and cost recovery efforts. She has also had the opportunity to work alongside Archer attorneys on several matters over the course of her career, bringing an established familiarity with the team and its collaborative approach to client service.

Katie commented, "I'm thrilled to join Archer and work alongside a team with an outstanding reputation in environmental law. Having already had the opportunity to collaborate with members of the firm's environmental group, I've seen firsthand the depth of experience and practical approach they bring to client matters. I look forward to building on those relationships and continuing to serve clients on complex and evolving environmental issues."
