

Executive Crises of Ethical Decision-Making

Speaking Engagements & Seminars

07.16.2026

Presented by: Eric I. Yun

Partner Eric Yun will be among the presenters at the National Association of Asian American Professionals (NAAAP) 39th Annual Leadership Convention, where he will lead a session examining the challenges of ethical decision-making in leadership.

As leaders take on greater responsibility, the ethical questions they face often become more complex and consequential. Drawing on examples from business, academia, government, and nonprofit organizations, Eric's presentation will explore practical approaches to navigating competing priorities, balancing organizational objectives with core values, and making decisions in situations where there may be no clear right answer.

Attendees will be introduced to frameworks for evaluating ethical dilemmas, identifying values that align with both personal convictions and organizational goals, and responding effectively when those values come into conflict. The session is designed to help leaders strengthen their decision-making processes and navigate challenging issues with greater clarity and confidence.
