

Andrew Cevasco and Matthew Nicodemo Named to Bergen County Surrogate/Bar Working Group

Press Releases

10.05.2026

Partners Andrew J. Cevasco and Matthew R. Nicodemo are serving as members of the newly established Bergen County Surrogate/Bar Working Group.

Announced by the Bergen County Surrogate's Court, the collaborative initiative is intended to establish a direct line of communication between the practicing bar and the Court. The Working Group will review and identify opportunities to streamline and improve services provided by the Surrogate's Court, with the goal of promoting greater efficiency for both the legal community and the public.

Andrew brings a longstanding commitment to legal ethics, professionalism, and leadership to the Working Group. A past president of the Bergen County Bar Association, his public service includes a 13-year appointment to the New Jersey Supreme Court Committee on Character, as well as his current service on the New Jersey Commission on Professionalism in the Law.

Matthew brings extensive experience in probate and estate-related matters to the Working Group. He is a recent graduate of the Mid-Atlantic Fellows Institute of the American College of Trust and Estate Counsel (ACTEC). His leadership within the local bar includes serving as Co-Chair of the BCBA Probate Litigation & Guardianship Committee and Co-Chair of the By-Laws Committee, as well as previously serving as President of the BCBA Young Lawyers Division.

Through their experience in probate law, legal ethics, and bar leadership, Andrew and Matthew will contribute their perspectives to the Working Group's efforts to improve communication and administrative processes within the Surrogate's Court.
