The opening of Archer's new office in Cape May Court House, NJ, was the subject of a recent article in the Philadelphia Business Journal. The article highlights the addition of partners Louis DeLollis and Lyndsy Newcomb, who, along with Archer partner Alexis Batten, will be based in the firm's new Cape May County location. Alexis is a public finance attorney who has served clients in the region from the firm's Voorhees and Red Bank offices.

Louis focuses his practice on corporate and business law, commercial transactions, real estate, land use and business succession planning. Lyndsy handles land use, planning and zoning, real estate, and environmental and regulatory compliance. All three attorneys are longtime Cape May County residents.

In discussing the new office, Archer President Marc Rollo noted, "Cape May County has a vibrant and diverse business community, from family-owned businesses and companies planning for the next generation to restaurants, marinas, hospitality businesses, property owners and developers investing in the region."

Marc also described Cape May Court House as a natural choice for the new office. As the county seat, it is centrally located and provides convenient access to county government, the courts and the various boards and agencies with which Archer attorneys regularly work. The location also allows the firm to serve clients throughout the county, from Ocean City to Cape May and the surrounding mainland communities.

Marc said that the firm also sees opportunities to serve the region's restaurants, breweries, marinas and other hospitality and waterfront businesses, particularly in connection with liquor licensing and regulatory matters.

The firm's new 2,600-square-foot office, located at 1 Enterprise Drive, was leased for a multiyear term.
