Overview

Dan concentrates his practice on complex environmental litigation. He is actively involved in advising and litigating on behalf of companies in the defense of product liability, natural resource damage, toxic tort, property damage, and personal injury claims. Dan has brought and defended cases in federal and state courts in a number of jurisdictions. He has significant experience in mass tort product liability multidistrict litigation involving defective design and failure to warn theories of liability in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Puerto Rico, and beyond.

Both a litigator and a counselor who uses his decades of experience in environmental law to help clients make reasoned judgments in complicated and difficult situations, Dan has an excellent eye for detail, along with a knack for identifying 'needle in a haystack' documents that can help shape a winning legal strategy. Clients appreciate his cost efficient, thorough, and experienced early assessment of environmental litigation strategy and defenses. Dan's goal is to give his clients the information they need to understand clearly the various available paths forward, and with his help, to choose the best one based on their particular goals and needs.

Dan serves clients in all phases of a case, with a significant focus on preparing key fact and expert witnesses for deposition, as well as deposing fact and expert witnesses in an array of subject matters, including those involving soil and groundwater contamination from underground storage tanks and surface spills. While Dan focuses primarily on environmental litigation, he also applies his litigation background to resolving associated regulatory issues, assisting clients in navigating New Jersey's complex SRRA, TRSR, and ISRA regulations and obligations.

As a member of Archer Discovery Strategies, Dan maintains in-depth knowledge of e-discovery trends and obligations, and frequently oversees the collection, review, and production of paper documents and electronically stored information in state, federal, and multidistrict litigations.

Dan is the current Secretary of the New Jersey State Bar Association's Environmental Law Section, and has served as the vice-chair of Medford Township's Environmental Affairs Advisory Committee.
