Overview

Michael has a diverse general and complex commercial litigation practice representing clients in a broad range of matters, including partnership disputes, UCC claims, defamation claims, contract disputes, real estate matters, unfair competition claims, employment disputes, environmental matters, as well as fraud-based criminal charges. He represents clients ranging from Fortune 500 companies and large multinational corporations, to mid- and small-sized businesses. Michael routinely appears before state and federal courts, administrative agencies and arbitrators in New Jersey and New York. He has successfully argued Appellate matters before the New York State Appellate Division, the New York State Appellate Term, and the New Jersey Appellate Division.

A significant portion of Michael's practice is focused on defending medical practitioners in disciplinary actions to protect their privileges at hospitals, and in defense of their medical licenses before the New Jersey State Board of Medical Examiners. He has arbitrated before the American Health Lawyers Association. In addition, Michael represents automobile dealerships in court and binding arbitrations. Mr. Horn also assists clients in complex transactions involving the sale or transfer of businesses.

Throughout his career, Michael has also represented businesses before regulatory boards such as the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission ("EEOC"), New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs, and the New York State Department of Labor, New York City Division of Human Rights. He has also litigated before the Tribunal of the United Nations.

Michael has a long list of clients that have relied upon his guidance for over a decade. He has developed a long-standing relationship with clients based upon trust, efficiency and effective results. When working with Michael, clients are provided a unique strategy that is designed to provide a holistic approach to litigation, while considering that the primary goal of any business is to succeed in their respective area. He provides clients real time information about their litigation and meaningful, effective and responsive representation.

Michael began his career as a litigator serving as an Assistant District Attorney in New York City. As a result, he has a keen ability to discover and litigate against fraudulent misconduct. During his tenure, Michael concentrated on prosecuting financial fraud crimes against large corporations and insurance companies, including subprime mortgage fraud, embezzlement charges and insurance fraud. He also conducted long-term investigations of criminal enterprises and identity theft operations.

Michael is a frequent lecturer and author on various topics in the area of litigation, such as enforceability of franchise non-competes, reverse false claims statutes, commercial real estate disputes, shareholder/membership disputes, and litigation regarding trade secrets, vendor contracts, and employment policies.
