Carlton Johnson, a Partner with Archer, P.C., has been appointed to the Board of Governors of the Philadelphia Bar Association.

Johnson was named to the Board earlier this month by the association's new Chancellor, A. Michael Pratt. Formerly the top-ranking attorney in the City of Philadelphia's Civil Rights Unit, Johnson is based in Archer's Philadelphia office as a Partner in the firm's Litigation Department.

"I am looking forward to assisting the new Chancellor, Mike Pratt, and the other members of the Board of Governors in accomplishing the ambitious agenda Mr. Pratt has set forth," Johnson said.

Pratt, the Bar Association's chief executive officer, has said his priorities include addressing city business taxes, creating a civics curriculum for lawyers and judges to teach in city schools, increasing charitable giving to bolster legal services for the indigent, and intensifying the focus on increased diversity in the legal profession.

The Board of Governors has general charge of the Bar Association's business and affairs. Founded in 1802, the 13,000-member Philadelphia Bar Association is America's first chartered metropolitan bar association and a keystone in the ongoing developments of the Philadelphia and Pennsylvania legal systems.

Johnson is Co-Chair of the Archer's Civil Rights and Government Relations practices. He specializes in civil rights and employment law case valuations and has extensive experience managing high profile cases. A graduate of Temple University Law School, he is actively involved in the Law School Alumni Association.

Archer, P.C., is a full-service law firm with more than 150 lawyers in six offices serving Fortune 100 clients, small to medium-sized businesses and individuals for over 75 years. In addition to 1 S. Broad in Philadelphia, the firm has offices in Haddonfield, Princeton and Flemington, N.J.; Wilmington, Del.; and New York, N.Y.
