

Jennie A. Owens Appointed to Rutgers-Camden Development Council

Press Releases

06.01.2010

Attorney Jennie A. Owens of Archer, P.C., has been appointed to a three-year term on the Dean's Leadership Council (DLC) at Rutgers University's Camden, N.J., campus.

The Council works with the Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, Margaret Marsh, to build a successful development program and encourage strong private support of arts and sciences education on the Camden campus. The DLC helps identify potential major gift support for the Faculty of Arts and Sciences and assists in developing external stakeholder interest through activities such as providing introductions, hosting meetings and small events, and arranging for campus visits. Currently, the DLC focuses its fundraising efforts on five initiatives on the Camden campus: Writers House, Honors College, Undergraduate Scholarships, International Studies and Undergraduate Research.

More information on the Council and the initiatives is available here.

Ms. Owens, of Gloucester Township, is an Associate in Archer's Family & Matrimonial Law Department in Haddonfield, N.J. She is a 2003 graduate of Rutgers University Honors College-Camden, earning a B.A. in Political Science with High Honors and Departmental Honors. She earned her law degree at Rutgers School of Law-Camden in 2006, with Honors. She is currently a board member of the Rutgers University Camden Alumni Association. Formerly a law clerk for Family Court Judge Charles M. Rand of the New Jersey Superior Court in Camden, Ms. Owens concentrates her practice in family and matrimonial matters.
