

Fraud: A Most Used and Least Understood Action

Press Releases

04.12.2011

Stella Tsai, Partner in Archer's Philadelphia office, will serve on the faculty of a Pennsylvania Bar Institute (PBI) seminar, Fraud: A Most Used and Least Understood Action, on April 12, 2011, at the Wanamaker Building, Juniper Street between Market and Chestnut Streets in Philadelphia. The seminar takes place in the CLE Conference Center on the 10th Floor, Suite 1010, from 9 a.m. to 1:15 p.m.

This brand new seminar will introduce attendees to fraud, walking them through every step to enable a better understanding of the concept and defenses, and will also demonstrate how a seemingly simple fraud case can be derailed by failing to meet one of the requirements. Attendees will:

- Receive a comprehensive explanation of how fraud can be used to help, or hinder, a case.
- Explore the nuances of fraud as a civil litigation tool.
- Learn from experts who have been practicing and teaching in this area for years.

The course earns attendees 4 CLE credits.
