

Ethics of Serving Legal Counsel: New Jersey Association for Justice's Boardwalk Seminar

Press Releases

04.27.2012

Eric D. Dakhari will speak at the New Jersey Association for Justice's Boardwalk Seminar on Friday, April 27, 2012 on the Ethics of Serving as Local Counsel.

Mr. Dakhari concentrates his practice on personal injury litigation in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. His experience includes participation in cases resulting in multi-million settlements, including a case on behalf of a client that suffered severe intestinal injury from a delayed diagnosis, and a case on behalf of a client injured in a firearms accident.

The New Jersey Association for Justice (NJAJ) is a statewide association of legal professionals and law students that works to preserve and strengthen laws for safer products and workplaces, a cleaner environment and quality health care. The NJAJ provides ongoing legal education to attorneys and educates consumers about their rights under the law.
