Archer's Peter L. Frattarelli recently spoke at New Jersey Business & Industry Association's “Federal Healthcare Reform: 2015 is Upon Us – Learn What You Have to Do” seminar on November 7 at The Pines in Edison, NJ.

This half-day seminar offered an overview of the Affordable Care Act's impact on New Jersey employers. It provided the latest information on what the law will mean for business and how it will impact the way you purchase health insurance for your business.

The seminar began with all attendees attending the opening session, titled “An Employer's Overview of the Affordable Care Act (ACA)”. It was followed by two concurrent breakout sessions. Breakout Session I: What New Jersey Small Businesses Can Expect in 2015 focused on the needs of employers with fifty or less employees and explained how they will affect small employers' health insurance purchasing decisions and also provided a compliance checklist. Breakout Session II: How the ACA Affects Large Employer Health Plans provided a deeper dive into aspects of the ACA for large employers. The presenters tackled key purchasing considerations in this new environment as well as highlighted compliance topics that employers need to be focused on this year. Mr. Frattarelli spoke in Breakout Session II on “Obamacare's Employer Mandate after the Final Regulations”.

Mr. Frattarelli is the Chair of Archer's Labor & Employment Department. He regularly represents management and employers in labor and employment litigation and proceedings. Mr. Frattarelli has extensive experience defending employers and individuals against harassment and discrimination lawsuits, as well as before state and federal administrative agencies.
