Robert Seiger, Chair of Archer's Sports & Entertainment Group, was interviewed on the Business College of Sports podcast with Kristi Dosh on the topic "Revisiting NIL for International Student Athletes: Breaking down attempts by international student athletes to participate in NIL." This episode takes a look at a few specific instances where international student athletes have attempted to take advantage of NIL without violating the restrictions of their student visas. Are these situations good examples of how international student athletes can take advantage of NIL opportunities? Or, will the government make an example out of them for violating visa laws? Listen to the podcast here.
