

Find it Free and Fast on the Net: Strategies for Legal Research on the Web

Speaking Engagements & Seminars

11.19.2013

Location: Atlantic City, NJ

Speakers: Micheal S. Horn

When: Tuesday, November 19, 2013

Harness the Many Uses of the Internet

The way we use the internet today is leagues away from how it was being used even five years ago. In order to keep the pace, you need streamlined research skills that will make the internet an asset rather than a liability for your firm. How do your skills stack up? Do you know the best, most efficient ways to get what you need? At this informative seminar, we can show you how to harness the internet as an excellent resource. Register today!

- Use our quick browser tricks to scan web pages and find relevant information fast.
- Uncover legal research shortcuts by identifying free legal portals and meta sites.
- Locate pages that “aren’t” there anymore using the invisible web.
- Avoid an unnecessary trip to the library - get statutes, bills, regulations and legislative history online.
- Find anything from vital statistics to professional licenses - we’ll show you where to look.
- Cut your document preparation time dramatically by referring to sample briefs, motions and settlements you can obtain from the internet.
- Know how to use the web to find phone numbers and addresses of missing people.
- Examine online company directories, stock quotes and SEC filings to conduct due diligence.

Who Should Attend

This basic-to-intermediate level seminar is designed to provide practical skills necessary for finding key information on the internet for:

- Attorneys
- Paralegals
- Legal Assistants
- Legal Support Staff
- Law Librarians
- Other Professionals Conducting Legal Research

For more information and to register, click here.

Related People

Michael S. Horn

Partner

✉ mhorn@archerlaw.com

☎ 201.498.8529

© 2025 Archer & Greiner, P.C. All rights reserved.

