Gianfranco A. Pietrafesa to present Document Drafting: The Keys to Avoiding “Hot Water” When Using Boilerplate Provisions.

Presented in cooperation with the NJSBA Business Law Section

Every attorney should be aware that boilerplate provisions are never really boilerplate. Using boilerplate provisions can expose your client to several risks. Often the result is litigation involving language used in an original document.

The issue of boilerplate language is far reaching, beginning with drafting the initial business arrangement and extending to litigation of commercial cases. You may encounter issues involving boilerplate provisions in business law practice, drafting employment agreements, dealing with international law issues, and more.

At this entirely new seminar, a panel of recognized experts in their fields will discuss the caveats in using boilerplate provisions for your clients, and will provide you with practical tips and strategies you can use right away.

Learn how to protect yourself and the clients you represent when dealing with boilerplate provisions, including:

- Forum selection clauses
- Choice of law clauses
- Arbitration/mediation clauses
- Insurance clauses
- Damage limitation clauses
- Enforcement issues

- Restrictive covenants/confidential information
- PLUS...a special segment on Ethical Issues in Drafting

Don't let you or your client get stuck in hot water. Register today!
