

Plastics

Overview

Archer attorneys have a focus on the specialty chemical, coatings, plastics and polymer industry. With tight margins and increased pricing pressure from customers, polymer companies must have multiple avenues in which to increase working capital and improve cash flow. Archer's relationships in the capital markets, as well as our experience in corporate structuring and finance can help you maintain and increase this crucial resource. In addition, we are able to assist companies in the polymer industry with managing human and intellectual property assets, understanding environmental regulations, navigating the latest governmental legislation and handling complex litigation.
