

Professional Negligence

Overview

Licensed professionals, such as accountants, attorneys, engineers, architects, and insurance brokers, who provide specialized services are sometimes the target of lawsuits when their clients believe the services provided were somehow deficient or they are dissatisfied with the outcome of their matter. Licensed professionals also may be subjected to licensure review and revocation based on alleged unethical or other questionable conduct.

Archer's Professional Negligence Group provide an appropriate and vigorous defense of licensed professionals when they find themselves in these circumstances. Our attorneys have a wealth of knowledge and experience in these types of matters, whether a professional's license is being challenged before state or local administrative bodies, or the professional is being sued in court for malpractice or other claims. We consult with our clients, evaluate the claims or allegations presented, and provide advice regarding the most appropriate and best course of action to follow based on the circumstances and applicable law. Where it makes sense, we use our experience to negotiate a resolution that avoids the cost and uncertainty of litigation. But when the situation requires litigation, we know how to professionally present a case in a way that crystalizes the often complex issues for the Court and juries.
